MILWAUKEE DAILY SENTINEL.

VOLUME XV. MILWAUKEE, SATURDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 20, 1858. NUMBER 276

THE DAILY SENTINEL.

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 20.

The News.

We have news from Washington which indicates that Walker's expedition to Nicaragua is not to be interfered with by either the United States or Great Britain, on the seas at least.

The New York State Arsenal, which was in process of erection on 34th street, fell down yesterday a mass of ruins, and at Albany the front of a warehouse gave way, letting a large quantity of grain out into the street. No lives lost by either accident.

A large amount of forged notes on the bank of Austria have been palmed off upon Wall street brokers. Three Germans were arrested for the forgery.

A variety of interesting news will be found in our telegraph and other columns this morning.

THE New York breadstuff market was rather dull yesterday, and flour declined 5 to 10 cents. Our own market, with better receipts, exhibits no change of importance.

The weather continues pleasant, though rather cold for the season. The Milwaukee river was frozen over yesterday morning, but the ice all disappeared before mid day.

THE SICKLES CONTEST.—The New York canvassers are having a protracted contest over the returns in the 3d district, where the grossest frauds were perpetrated. On Saturday, Capt. SICKELY—one of the Inspectors in the 1st Ward—was examined, who said that 23 votes were wrongfully added to Sickles—they being found in another box, and he believed the box was previously stuffed. It is time a stop was put to this way of electing "democrats" to office.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE G. W. RAILWAY.—The Hamilton Spectator of Wednesday morning says, "we regret to learn that Mrs. HARLAND, relict of JOHN HARLAND, Esq., the well known agriculturist of Guelph, met with a dreadful death by an accident on the Great Western Railway, on Monday evening. The deceased had come from Detroit by the express train, and on leaving it to exchange cars at Harlsburg, she fell in some way beneath the train, which passed over her, severing the legs from the body. This occurred about half-past 6 P. M., and she expired under her sufferings at about 9 o'clock.

SPECIAL ELECTION IN BUFFALO.—The citizens of Buffalo, on Tuesday voted upon the question of guaranteeing to the International Bridge Com. for a period of years, $50,000 annually. The citizens agreed to assume the obligation by a majority of 1,716.

The Celebration Thursday Evening.

THE GREAT REPUBLICAN TRIUMPH!

Judge Potter meets a Hearty Welcome from his Constituents.

LETTERS FROM HON. CHARLES BILLINGHURST AND SENATOR DOOLITTLE.

Speech of Hon. Carl Schurz.

THE MORAL OF THE RECENT VICTORIES IN THE FREE STATES.

The Germans Deserting the Pro-Slavery Party.

On Thursday evening the Republicans of Milwaukee and some few visitors from other portions of the State, gave expression to their joy at the glorious results of the recent elections throughout the Free States in the success of the principles of freedom and right, for which our party has so nobly battled. A short time previous to the meeting at Albany Hall, one hundred guns were ordered by the Republican Committee, in honor of the signal triumph of the people over the abettors of slavery and corruption in this city and Congressional District, the former hitherto the stronghold of the Sham Democracy of Wisconsin. Before the time for speaking had arrived a large number of our Republican fellow-citizens, as well as many of our Democratic friends, who struggled with us for the good cause in the recent contest, despite the influence of party ties. A little before 8 o'clock the chairman of the Committee of Arrangements called the meeting to order, and nominated a President, and a Vice President from each Ward, together with two Secretaries, who were elected by acclamation. The officers of the meeting were:

President—General JAMES H. PAINE.

Vice Presidents—First Ward, JACOB MAHLER; Second Ward, J. A. PHELPS; Third Ward, WM. BROWN, Jr.; Fourth Ward, CHAS. H. WILLIAMS; Fifth Ward, GREGOR MENZEL; Sixth Ward, CICERO COMSTOCK; Seventh Ward, EDWIN PALMER; Eighth Ward, GEO. B. BINGHAM; Ninth Ward, FREDERICK ZILLIG.

Secretaries—BERNARD DOMSCHKE and CHAS. K. WELLS.

The officers took their places on the stand when Mr. BOOTH, at the request of the Chairman, read the following letters from the Hon. CHARLES BILLINGHURST, and from Senator DOOLITTLE:

JUNEAU, NOV. 10, 1858.

S. M. BOOTH, ESQ.—Sir: Your invitation to me, to be with our Republican friends at Albany Hall to-morrow evening, to celebrate the recent Republican victory in your City, District, and State, has been received.

For more than a week I have been confined to my house by an attack of pleurisy, and I have been delaying my answer, in the hope that I should be sufficiently recovered to be with you, but it is now evident that it will not be prudent for me to venture out, for some days to come.

Great honor is due to the First District for her glorious triumph, and you are right in celebrating. The re-election of Judge POTTER is a merited tribute to true manliness—a popular approbation of sound republican principles, and a condemnation of the corrupt Administration that, unfortunately for our country, is now in power at Washington.

Milwaukee County, in particular, has done well in this contest. I am encouraged with the hope that, in the future, she will do better.

The Second District and the State should be remembered in your celebration; but the result in this District is no ground for gratification. It detracts from that complete victory which the Republicans owed to their cause. That cause is a just one, and Wisconsin should have been true throughout. But the sentinels upon our battlements have been asleep. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." That price has been withheld in this District, and liberty has lost. But that loss is only temporary. The contest is not ended. This is but a single repulse in a great struggle, which, as yet, is only in the beginning.

The Third District will regain its lost ground, and, in future elections, as in past ones, properly vindicate the true dignity of labor, the natural rights of man, and the fundamental principles of our government.

Very Respectfully yours,
C. BILLINGHURST.

RACINE, Nov. 17, '58.

S. M. BOOTH Esq.—Dear Sir:—I have been trying to shape my business matters so as to be able to attend your Celebration in Milwaukee tomorrow evening, but I find I cannot do so. That I have a very important matter that must be attended too to-morrow, or it must go over until next year. Be assured that it would rejoice my soul to give utterance, if I could find words to do so, to all the gratitude I feel towards the electors of Milwaukee, for their action in the late contest by which the election of Judge POTTER was not only made certain, but was made triumphant. I regard the re-election of Judge POTTER by such an overwhelming majority, under all the circumstances, as no less important and significant than the defeat of J. GLANCY JONES in Pennsylvania. It is regarded with the highest satisfaction all over the Union. In a letter received the other day from the Hon. FRANK P. BLAIR, Jr., he speaks of POTTER'S election as a "triumph" and as giving the friends of Freedom in Missouri "great joy." There were circumstances surrounding it which gave it a national significance far more important than the simple election of an individual.

Sincerely yours, J. R. DOOLITTLE.

The sentiments in both of these letters were responded to with hearty applause, and at their conclusion Mr. BOOTH announced that Hon. JOHN F. POTTER, our representative elect, had arrived in the city, about half an hour previously, fatigued from his journey, and not fully recovered from an attack of illness, under which he had been suffering since the arduous duty of the campaign had ended. Mr. BOOTH said that a speech could not be expected of Judge POTTER, but that he would come forward and say "thank you."

In introducing Judge POTTER to the audience, said Gen. PAINE, "you all have the honor of knowing him, and they know him at Washington too." Judge POTTER was greeted with a storm of applause upon making his appearance, and he responded to the compliment in a few feeling remarks, which were in substance as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT AND FELLOW CITIZENS:—It affords me great pleasure to mingle my congratulations with you here to-night upon the noble victory we have achieved. I congratulate you upon the result of the elections in this State, and throughout the country. They afford an indication of what will take place in the great campaign of 1860. It is proper, fellow citizens, that I should allude to the unprecedented majority with which I have been honored in my re-election. But what can I say? There are times, fellow citizens, when words cannot express the feelings of the heart, and that is my situation this evening. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the hearty manner in which you have endorsed my political course; such an expression of your favor will be a further incentive to me in performing my whole duty when I again return to Congress to represent your interests.

With these remarks Judge Potter begged to be excused on account of his health, and as he took his seat he was vociferously cheered.

CARL SCHURZ' SPEECH.

At the conclusion of Judge POTTER'S remarks Hon. CARL SCHURZ was loudly called for and upon taking the stand he was welcomed by a hearty round of cheers. He then spoke as follows:

GENTLEMEN:—I did not come here for the the purpose of receiving your applause for what little I may have contributed to the result of the late election. It is no affected modesty on my part when I say there are many men here, who, in a quiet way have done and effected much more than myself, and although I thank my friends for the good opinion they entertain of my services, yet I do not thank them for the distinction they make and for the exclusive praises they bestow upon me, while others have so richly deserved them. I simply did a freeman's duty, and so did every one in his way. Let no unjust discrimination be made, which might wound the feelings of deserving men while they cannot fail to embarrass those, for whose gratification they are intended. Equal honor to every brave man who stood to his gun in the battle! [Cheers.] Honor to the members of the American Press, who have faithfully worked for the good cause day after day. Honor to the members of the German Republican press, who, fighting in the minority, have for years and years sacrificed the comforts of life, and struggled with difficulties unknown to most of you, until at last they found a reward for their labors in the victories of our cause. [Applause.]

We have, indeed, achieved a surprising success in this city. But glorious as it was, I warn my Republican friends not to mistake its meaning. It was indeed a most hearty endorsement of our noble representative in Congress, and a crushing verdict against the corrupt party organization which so long has ruled the destinies of this district; but the glorious majority we gained was not a mere partizan majority; the victory we achieved was not a mere partizan victory. It was the victory of political honesty over corruption; was the victory of moral independence over moral servitude, of manhood over servile partisanship! (Great applause.) Glory enough for the Republicans, that the voice of political independence spoke in their favor.

I know and you all know how this great result has been attained. It was the German vote which has defeated you so often, it is the German vote that gave us now so brilliant a victory.—(Cheers.) I know my countrymen, and I think I understand the true meaning of their action. I indeed have often enough endeavored to rub out their prejudices and to plant convictions in their place; but now I see, that I was merely giving words to the true thoughts of my countrymen; that I merely gave an expression to their real feelings. [Cheers.] Yes they are shaking off the yoke of Hunkerism, which endeavored to degrade them to more voting machines, they are breaking through the enslaving drill and discipline of the false Democracy.

But now, after having preached the true principles of American liberty to the Germans, you must allow me to explain the real feelings of my countrymen to the Americans. I entreat you, let not this glorious victory lead you into the dangerous delusion, that the Germans after having shaken off the yoke of one party despotism, are ready to take upon their necks the yoke of another! [Cheers.] After having raised the banner of moral independence to-day they are certainly not prepared to surrender it again to-morrow. They will follow the lead of political honesty, as long as it is true honesty that leads them. [Cheers.] They have stood up for the defence of the principles of liberty, and they will remain true to that cause, so long it is genuine and true liberty which claims their support.—But I tell you my Republican friends, and I sincerely hope that my countrymen who have emancipated themselves from party despotism, will never again consent to be made use of in corrupt combinations and political tricks, that they never will again be parties to dirty political trades and corrupt bargains, on whatever side they may be attempted! [Great applause.] And I do not hesitate to prophesy, that as soon as the Republican party should be unfortunate enough to entangle itself in the same net work of corruption with which the Democracy is choking itself to death, the people will strike it down with the same crushing verdict under which Hunkerism is sinking now. And in that case, I confess my heart would behold with grief and sorrow its degradation, but it would have no tears for its defeat. [Applause.]

Such predictions will never be fulfilled as long as the Republicans keep in mind, that it requires an honest party to defend great principles with success, and that in order to preserve the liberties of this country, and to carry out the great ideas of our Fathers it is indispensably necessary to raise the standard of political morals.—[Cheers.]

The decline and decay of political morals is not owing to the more or less accidental circumstance that a certain number of corrupt men rose to influence and power. The real cause is, that the political action of the masses was not dictated and ruled by their consciences. (Cheers.)

When you look over the history of that party which for a long series of years has shaped the destinies of this Union, you will discover that its organization is of a hierarchical and despotic character, and that its policy does not spring from the heart of the people. You must discover, that its frequent changes of principles and platforms did not arise from spontaneous and corresponding changes in public opinion, but that they were imposed upon the masses of the party by a foreign will, and that the masses were but obeying the arbitrary dictation of a few superiors. Thus you see the Democratic party of the North ride with the greatest facility within a few years from extreme to extreme, from the Wilmot Proviso to the most atrocious doctrines of the Dred Scott decision. How was this effected and what was the consequence? The means was the fiercest party despotism, and the crushing out of individual convictions, and the consequence was the deepest demoralization of the popular conscience. [Cheers.] People were taught that they had to sacrifice their principles to the party, and with their principles they sacrificed their moral independence and their moral worth. [Great applause.]

Indeed, what man has the right to call himself a regular Democrat now-a-days. Has he, who once with the leaders of the party held the Missouri Compromise as sacred and inviolable as the Constitution itself? Has he, who once with Gen. CASS deplored that he had no opportunity to record his vote for the Wilmot Proviso? Has he, who once stood upon the Wisconsin Platform of 1849, or he who shortly afterwards subscribed to Gen. CASS' Nicholson letter? or he who in 1854, cheered for Douglas' new doctrine that the Missouri restriction was unconstitutional, but that the people of a territory should have the power to admit or exclude slavery even in a territorial condition? Or he, who shortly afterwards limited this right to exclude slavery to the time when the people of a territory formed a State Constitution? Or he, who now subscribes to the doctrine of the Dred Scott decision, that the right of property in a slave is originally and expressly affirmed by the Federal Constitution, and that slavery has an unlimited sway over all the property of the United States? Is he a Democrat who to-day condemns the re-opening of the slave trade as an outrageous wrong, or will he be a Democrat who will assert to-morrow that a slave being an ordinary article of merchandize we have no right to limit the freedom of trade in that article? No, he is no Democrat who has stood faithful and true to any one of these principals, however loudly he may have professed them; But he is a regular Democrat who has successively endorsed every one of them, who has jumped from one platform upon another without scruple or hesitation, and who was always ready to swear that the leaders of "the Party" were always right, whatever they might command, and that the whole world besides was wrong. [Great applause.] He is a regular Democrat who was readiest in yielding the most slavish obedience to superior dictation. The true party test of Democracy is neither the Nebraska bill nor the Dred Scott Decision; it is unconditional submission and ever ready obedience. [Loud and continued applause.] How is this. Is it probable that a man should have been truly and deeply convinced of the truth of any one of these principles, if he was always ready to abandon it for another? Is it possible that those who changed leading doctrines as easily as they changed their clothes, should have cared for principle at all? Could it be true conviction that ruled them? And if it was not conviction that ruled them, what concern could their consciences have in their politics?

Oh, what a sight is this! I am the son of a nation, whose roaring spirit was subdued by the bayonets of hireling armies. I have seen thousands and thousands shoulder their muskets and march against the defenders of their own rights and their own liberty; but it was not their choice to do so; for terror overawed their hearts and brutal force directed their steps. And I have seen other thousands and thousands sacrifice all they had, and fight and suffer, and die, in order to bequeath to the people the right to express their true convictions and their free will at the ballot box, and for no other cause has humanity struggled more, and for no other has the noblest blood of mankind been shed. To see the efforts of a liberty-loving nation crushed down by brute violence is a spectacle that fills our souls with sadness, but we do reverence to those who perished in their noble attempts. More deplorable still, because less honorable, is the lot of those who were forced to fight against their own rights and their own liberty; they are the victims of despotism without being the champions of freedom. But what feelings have our hearts, what designation has our language, for those who, in a free country like this, unfettered by any kind of despotism, with no terror to overawe and no force to coerce them, sacrifice their convictions and their consciences to a moral tyranny of their own making? [Cheers.] And these we find in our midst. Do not try to disguise the fact.—There are no bayonets here against convictions. There is no power here that could prevent the lowest child of the people from having a will and convictions of his own, and from expressing them freely. Every one is the sovereign master of his own self. And yet how many are there who immolate their consciences, their convictions, all their moral independence, on the altar of a savage idol, whose name is "Party." [Great cheers.] How many submit to a thraldom, which is the more shameful as it is unsupported by force, and rests only on the slavish propensities of its devotees. [Applause.]

Is it not so? Are not the real feelings of the masses trampled upon with impunity, and public opinion treated with contempt? Are not the most attrocious constitutional doctrines imposed upon the people with as much arbitrariness as the despots of the old world impose ukases upon their subjects? And yet the rank and file of "the party" stifle the warning voice of conscience, and obey, obey, obey! [Loud applause.] Do not call that rebellion which recently broke out in the camp, an indication of moral independence. What is it, but that one pretender rises against another, each eager to wield the rod of command alone? What is it, but that, as in the play of Copelenti and Montechi, the house of Douglas rises against the House of Buchanan, the white rose fights the red, an anti-pope fighting against the pope, but both trying to rule their clients and followers with the same rule, and to whip them in with the same whip? Who is the greater despot of the two? Does not Douglas on one side, dictate principles in the same absolute way as Buchanan does on the other? Is it nothing but double-headed party despotism. [Loud cheers.] Those who were sincerely fighting for principle will have to leave the party. The South will soon declare her sovereign pleasure, the greedy courtiers will crowd the anti chamber of the victor, and order will reign in Warsaw. [Applause.]

Such is the party, which has stood so long at the helm of affairs. Its history and its present condition are full of instruction for the people; for not the politicians, but the masses, who supported them are responsible for the curse of demoralization which that party has brought upon us. [Cheers.]

It is said, that there are but few men, who, however honest otherwise, can withstand the seductions of power. If this is true, what effect must it have on political leaders, when they see that in point of principle and political doctrine, they can do with the masses whatever they please? When they find out, that they will be obeyed and applauded whatever their commands may be? There is no somerset so glaring, no sophistry so absurd, and no doctrine so atrocious, but the rank and file will accept them? That they may sell themselves and sell others without being rebuked? That they may even squander the money and rob the treasury of the people without being held to account? Nay that their very depravity gives them a claim on the protection of their party? Let me tell you, that not only the politicians debauched the conscience of the people by contempt of principle, but that the masses demoralized the politicians by culpable indulgence. [Great cheers.] Yes, when that party put an honest man in office, they did all they could in order to make a rascal out of him, while he was in power, [loud applause] and the virtue of many a man has thus been victimized by his constituency. And when, at last, such a man had become a regular scoundrel, he did in his turn all he could to demoralize those who had made him so. We might call this democratic reciprocity, and it is in full operation everywhere. [Tremendous applause.]

Where this course would lead, if the masses persevered in it, I do not know. But I do know that there is no remedy, unless we put the axe to the roots of evil, and I consider this one of the most important parts of the mission of Republicanism. It must be our principal object, not only to catch the people's votes for our candidates, but enlist in our cause the people's consciences. [Great cheer.] We must encourage moral independence in politics; we must encourage every man to think and to reason for himself, to form his own convictions, and to stand by them; we must entreat them, never to accept, unseen and uninvestigated, the principles and opinions of others, even if they be our own. Let those who follow your lead, believe in your words, because what you say is true, and not because you say it. [Applause.] Do not object that this will loosen the party organization, and destroy its efficiency. For our cause is great, and the principles of Republicanism stand on the firm ground of the rights of man. The closer they are investigated the clearer they stand in the open light of day, the more invincible they are. If what you say is true, you need no tricks and deception in order to make people believe.—Address yourselves to their moral nature, and their conscience will enlighten their understanding. [Loud Applause.] Thus you will organize the party of independent men. This independence will keep the rank and file vigilant, and this vigilance will keep the leaders upright and honest. It will put an end to the omnipotence of wire-pulling, and nip Republican-Hunkerism in the bud. [Loud applause.] I know it will require incessant work to keep up something like discipline in that party, but it will be an object worth working for; for such an organization will never become a mere tool in the hand of selfish ambition, and its discipline will never degenerate into a mere machinery of despotism. I know that volunteers sometimes will not fight as well as regular troops, and that drill will sometimes beat enthusiasm. But enthusiasm also may be discipline, and then it will be irresistible. [Cheers.]

I have no faith in the wisdom of that policy of expediency which consists in forming alliances with heterogenous elements, and in compromising leading principles for the sake of gaining numerical strength [cheers] Temporary successes may, indeed, be achieved by such operations, and short-sighted men, who consider themselves eminently practical, may glory in their exploits. But they are only too apt to forget, that serious moral defeats have sometimes been suffered in apparent victories, and moral victories have been won in apparent defeats. And both will bear their fruits in the future [loud applause.] It may soon turn out, that what by such expedients they may have gained in point of numbers to-day, they have lost in moral strength for all the future. Our leaders must not forget that we are not working merely for the sake of overthrowing an administration, or of achieving some temporary successes to-day and to-morrow, but that our true end, which consists in setting a limit to the slave power and the demoralization of political life, will require our united efforts for years to come. They ought never to forget, that ours is a party of volunteers, who act on principle and conviction, and that nothing tends so much to break up such a party, as that fickle policy which shifts from expedient to expedient, from alliance to alliance, from compromise to compromise [cheers.] A party like ours can never be ruled by secret diplomacy [loud applause.] Our true strength consists in the honest confidence of the people, which cannot but be endangered by sacred combinations, however ingenious and clever they may be. As for me, I believe in an open and straightforward fight, [cheers] I believe that even in politics honesty is the best policy [loud applause.] I believe in the possibility of reforming our political life, and I will tell you how I think you can do it.

It is true we cannot expect every Republican to be a perfect angel. Even when advocating the purest principles, a man will not at once cast off all the frailties of human nature, and so it may happen, and, I am sorry to say, it has happened, that some Republicans in the discharge of official duties, fell victims to severe temptations. But one thing we can do, we must do, and we shall do. We must not hesitate to denounce every member of our own party who prostitutes his trust and power by dishonest and corrupt transactions as a miserable scoundrel. (Loud applause.) And not only that, we must consider and denounce, and treat him as a traitor to his party! [Thundering cheers.] What we can and must do, is, to make all hishonest and corrupt practices, high treason, and to take every such traitor by his ears and pitch him overboard; [Applause.] to condemn him to political death without regard to person or station—without the benefit of clergy. (Long and continued cheers.) That is the only way to stem the flood of demoralization among the people and among the politicians, and to root out that atrocious, hideous popular notion, which so much contributes in its consequences—which has been started and fostered by the democrats; the notion that a politician who is not knave enough to steal must necessarily be a fool! (Loud cheers) To a corrupt Republican let no other alternative be presented but to be buried in the grave of infamy and oblivion, or to go over to the other side where such scamps thrive and prosper. (Tremendous cheers)

I hear some democrat say, that a Republican Governor has taken $50,000 in bonds from the La Crosse Company. Well, I am not the man to quibble and to equivocate about it. [Cheers.] I say that a Republican Governor who has taken a bribe, is no better than a Democratic Governor who did the same; no, he is ten times worse, for while the democratic Governor would but have followed established precedents, and the customs of his party, [Loud laughter and cheers] the Republican Governor would have proved a traitor to his friends and a disgrace to a great cause. [Great applause.] And as to the facts—where is that Republican Governor now?—Where is the place of honor or confidence which the Republicans have assigned him? But if that man had been a Democrat, I have no doubt his party would have taken his exploits for an indication of smartness, and would have rewarded his business talent with a re-nomination. [Loud laughter and cheers.] Have they forgotten what they did with Barstow? After all the glaring abuses of his administration had become known to every school boy, the Democracy of Wisconsin, in State Convention assembled, solemnly renominated him for the Governorship, and out of the very depths of his prostitution grew his principal claims to the highest honors and the most responsible trusts of the State. [Loud cheers.] Have they forgotten their nominee for Senator in this city? [Laughter.] The Democracy took his performances as an Alderman and his management of the La Crosse Land Grant measure for an evidence of his superior business talent; and they could find no fitter man to represent their honor and virtue in the Senate of Wisconsin. [Loud applause and Laughter.] And even when nominating a candidate for Congress, they could not help selecting a christian gentleman [laughter] whose pockets were big with $52,000 in Superior R. R. bonds! [Bursts of laughter and applause.]

Let us compare our records, my Democratic friends, and see how they stand. Look all over the State of Wisconsin, and then point your finger to one single instance, where a Republican, who has sullied his hands with corruption in the discharge of his official duties, has been honored with a nomination for office by a Republican Convention! [Cheers.] Show me one such instance, and I will show you twenty Democrats whose names stand prominent on the darkest pages of the history of Wisconsin, and by whose nominations you pay premiums for swindling and emphatically endorse and encourage corruption! [Loud applause.]

Republicans, if you claim the right to be severe on your opponents you must be no less severe against yourselves. Let the Republican organization be a permanent investigating committee, watching its own members, and let it be understood that, if it is not sufficient excuse for a scoundrel to be a Democrat, a scoundrel is in your eyes ten times more damnable if he pretends to be a Republican. (Loud applause.) Although you may not be perfect, yet you will show by your acts that you are honestly endeavoring to do your best, while, on the other side, corruption stalks abroad with the disgusting impudence of a prostitute who delights in exhibiting her vices naked to the world. I repeat it, and I cannot impress it upon your minds too strongly or too solemnly; our liberties and the honor and prestige of this Republic cannot be preserved, unless you raise the standard of political morals, and this is the way to do it. In the place of every hypocrite unmasked, of every rascal struck down by your own hands, ten honest men will flock to your banner. (Loud applause)

This is the policy which our principles demand. If we follow it sincerely and faithfully, then the light of truth will soon pierce even the thickest darkness of Egypt. (Cheers.) The revolution has begun, and I greet its first symptoms with heartfelt satisfaction; whether it will have an unimpeded progress depends in a large measure upon those, who, by these first upheavings of the popular spirit, have been carried into responsible positions.

Let me entreat our Republican legislators elect, never to forget that they have not been elected by a strict party vote; that they are indeed expected to stand true to their party, but only so long as the party is true to the cause of liberty and honesty. [Loud applause.] Let them never forget that the trust imposed upon them is of unusual importance; upon their shoulders rest the destinies of a State, whose reputation is tainted by venal legislatures and administrations and whose credit is ruined by legislative blunders. Let them never forget that in a society organized like ours, stability of legislation is the principal safeguard of public credit, (Cheers,) and that, whatever changes in our laws may be desirable, vested rights and existing contracts must be religiously respected.—(Loud and continued applause.) Let them never forget that true economy does not consist in close parsimony alone, but in a wise and appropriate application of the moneys expended.—(Cheers.) Let our legislators and county officers bear in mind that it may be easy to gain the confidence of the people, but difficult to preserve it, and that they will be held responsible for the next election. In one word, let this celebration of one of the most surprising successes ever achieved be solemnized by a deeper consciousness of our duties and responsibilities. (Cheers.)

A last word, my friends. I cannot deny an expression to the feeling of joy with which I am beholding a sight, for which my heart has longed for years and years. It is, the honest and liberty-loving German joining hands with the honest and liberty loving American. [Thundering and long continued applause.] Look over this broad land; at Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, aye, and Milwaukee also, the Germans together with the Americans crowding around the banner of human liberty! See there the old Germanic idea showing its true identity in all the branches of the good old Germanic stock. [Loud cheers.] Let the bond of this wedlock be sacred and inviolable! Your interests are the same, and in your inmost hearts your principles are the same—why should you not be true to each other? Let this alliance spread and flourish all over this State, all over this Republic—and the cause of liberty will triumph and our honor will be safe! [Long and continued applause.]

Hon. S. D. HASTINGS and Judge MORTIMER M. JACKSON, of Iowa Co., followed Mr. SCHURZ in brief and appropriate speeches, which were received with loud tokens of satisfaction.

JOHN H. TWEEDY was then called for, and upon taking the stand said:

GENTLEMEN—I do not come forward to make a speech. I come only to let you see that I do not feel bad at the result of the late election. I endorse Mr. Schurz's speech. (Applause.)

Mr. BOOTH said he desired to say one word:

We have never had, at a Republican meeting in this city, such a speech as Mr. Schurz has given us to-night. If I could feel that those sentiments were cordially endorsed in the heart of hearts of every Republican in the State, I would lay down my pen and say, "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have beheld thy glory." (Laughter and cheers.)

Mr. SCHURZ closed with a speech of about half an hour's length in German, at the conclusion of which three rousing cheers were given for Judge POTTER, and three more for CARL SCHURZ. Thus ended the celebration.

A BOLD THIEF NABBED IN THE NICK OF TIME.—About two weeks ago, a young man named JOHN DRUM, who has figured pretty extensively in our police court records for the past twelve years on and off, was found with a large box of leather in his possession, which he was endeavoring to sell in this city, and was arrested on suspicion that he had stolen the leather. He was kept a day or two, but as no owner could be found for the leather, and there was no evidence that he had stolen it—although there was no doubt of that fact—he was discharged from custody by the Chief of Police, who, however, took the precaution to keep the leather and direct DRUM to call for it in two weeks. The latter interposed no objections to this arrangement, and immediately took his departure for parts unknown.

Two weeks passed away, when a Chicago leather merchant, named C. F. GRAY, of the firm of C. F. GRAY & Co., who was in the city on business, called at the Police Station, to inform the Chief of Police of a robbery which had been committed upon their establishment a short time since, and a large quantity of leather carried away. He said the thief, or thieves, entered their store at night, and made a desperate effort to force open the safe, but failing in that, carried off a number of rolls of leather.

The Chief showed Mr. GRAY the leather which had been found in the possession of DRUM, and he immediately identified it as that which they had lost. While Mr. GRAY and Capt. BECK were talking about the robbery, in walked the thief and very coolly demanded his leather! BECK at once gave Mr. GRAY the hint to keep quiet while he questioned DRUM as to how he came by the leather. The latter answered all the questions which were put to him very coolly, no doubt believing he was about to get out of the scrape cleverly, and told a long story about having got it from a man who owed him $250 in Iowa. "No you didn't," said BECK, "you did—a thief you stole it from Chicago and (turning to Mr. GRAY) here is the man who owns it."—DRUM started almost from his feet at seeing Mr. GRAY, and exclaimed, "is that so?"

He was arrested on the spot and sent back to Chicago in irons yesterday afternoon.

ACCIDENT TO THE STEAMER GAZELLE.—The steamer Gazelle came into port yesterday with canvass nailed over her bow, to prevent leakage, in consequence of a slight accident which occurred to her near Grand Haven on Monday night last. It appears that it was a very foggy night, and when a short distance from the entrance to Grand Haven, an unknown vessel which had no light of any kind on board, ran against the bow of the steamer, carrying away the outwater and a portion of the bow below water. The vessel was not seen until quite close to the boat, and then the steam was reversed, but it was too late to avoid collision. The Gazelle, upon arriving here, immediately went upon the dry dock, where she will remain a day or two for repairs. The agent tells us that she will be all right again on Monday.

Then we will acknowledge in appropriate terms, the princely hospitality and courtesy of our military and civilian friends, in your beautiful and prosperous city.—Our chief wish now is, that we may have the pleasure, in July next, or sooner, of welcoming you all, as our guests, in our city of the Straits on your old stamping ground.

Very truly, yours, H. B. M."

TO THE PUBLIC.

In answer to the numerous letters addressed to me on the subject of Mustang Liniment, I would say that I have had no connection with that article for several years. It was invented by me, and while put up under my control and supervision, was universally accepted by the people as the best liniment in the world. In 1854 I sold out my interest in it to other parties, and since that time it has passed through the hands of several persons, none of whom have been so unscrupulous as to manufacture it of inferior articles, or in any way, so far as that is entirely destroy its value as a medical remedy, trusting for success in selling to its former highly established reputation. I therefore caution the public against buying or using any of the articles in its composition for me to substitute other articles in its composition for those in the original prescription, so that the Mustang Liniment now vended possesses no one of the distinguishing characteristics of the genuine article, as originally invented and manufactured by me. These parties, to enable themselves with more facility to foist their worthless and injurious article on the public, use the name of my "Mustang Liniment," my "Mustang" Liniment, and cautioning the public to beware of any such Mustang Liniment as an imposition. This is done with a view of exciting prejudice against "BEAGLE'S ARNICA MUSTANG LINIMENT," recently put up by me, and possessing all the virtues of the original Mustang, with some improvements—the result of experience and later discoveries—and must be secured by Beagle & Bennett, the whole firm to succeed to the interest in the article now vended as the Mustang Liniment. It is also the only liniment manufactured to which my name is appended by my authority or consent, by executing which, parties will render themselves liable for any of the evil results of using the Mustang Liniment now vended, and especially after this public disclaimer of any connection with its proprietorship or manufacture.
BEAGLE & BENNETT.

AGENTS FOR MILWAUKEE—H. BOSWORTH & SONS, Importers and Wholesale Druggists, 159 East Water Street, Milwaukee, Wis. oct9h221d&wSm

☞ WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 15, 1855.—Dear Sir: But one opinion prevails here with regard to the sanative power of your Electric Oil. One case here has proved more striking than any other—a man crippled for 16 years, has been restored to the use of his limbs entirely. This induced me to try it myself, and it has relieved almost immediately, both Neuralgia and Rheumatism. One of my friends has used it for Corns, Scalds, &c., for a year, has been cured in a week by this Oil, and I do not hesitate to recommend it to all. I wish for the sake of humanity, that this Oil could be had throughout the entire world. Yours respectfully,
WM. HENRY FITZHUGH, Brown's Hotel.

55 great cures are known to have been made in Washington within two weeks past, and in Baltimore at least 100, besides hundreds in Norfolk, Portsmouth and Richmond, and more trifling pains and aches. In Augusta, N. J., in Harrisburg and Wilmington, and also from Cleveland, Ohio, to Chicago, where it has been introduced, the report is wonderful. All say it beats everything ever tried to take out pain and to thoroughly remove from the system both Rheumatism and Erysipelas. Rheumatism, Swellings, Sores, Sprains, Wounds, Cuts, Burns, and to cure Palpitation and partial Paralysis.—It will do in ninety-nine cases in every hundred, and if used according to directions; and it is pleasant, does not smart, nor interfere with any food, nor other medicine.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13th,
Prof. DeBr ath—I can sell a great deal of your Oil, as it is well spoken of in our neighborhood; and as a day passes but I hear of some new cure. Send me 24 dozen more, by Steamboat to Georgetown, D. C., to the care of Messrs. Stock & Co., keep it. Send me some immediately and oblige yours, truly, ROBT. A. PATTS,
Druggists, cor. Fourth st., and Pa. Av.

See my written name on the wrappers; name blown in glass also. Prof. DE GRATH,

OFFICE OF THE DAILY SENTINEL, } Friday Evening, Nov. 19, 1858. }

GRAIN CLEANER & SEPARATOR

HORTON'S PATENT

G. B. BINGHAM & BRO.,

Sole Manufacturers in Wisconsin.

THIS MACHINE is of recent invention, and surpasses all others in the perfection as to thorough Separator and Scourer. It has given entire satisfaction in New York, Pennsylvania and other States where it has been introduced, and we are confident it is better adapted to the cleaning of Western Grain than any other ever introduced into this State. It is fire Proof, notliable to get out of repair, requires but little power to run it, and its cleaning qualities are constructed as to render it unnecessary to be renewed for years. We respectfully invite all Western Millers to give us a call, and examine our machine, at the Bay State Foundry, Florida st., Milwaukee, Wis. feb5dtr6d1y
